SATURDAY EVENING, FEB. 4, 1922.

WHY NOT BUILD NOW?

If you are one of the number of persons who have been contemplating building a home, and also one of the larger number very much concerned about a larger measure of prosperity being enjoyed by workers, merchants and other classes in this vicinity, why not definitely decide that you will no longer defer concluding arrangements to start building?

It is true that conditions do not make the present a favorable time to build, but it is equally true that every proposed project that is deferred means the still greater prolongation of the period during which conditions will remain much as they are now.

Connellsville's building contractors are splendidly equipped to handle any building you may entrust to them.
The Building & Loan associations are in position to help you finance the building of a home. There are any number of competent workers who would welcome a chance to get busy.
The costs of building are, of course, higher than before the war, but you cannot reasonably hope that in your life time at least wages will drop to such levels, or building materials will become as cheap as they were in 1914.

Better make up your mind to go ahead so that you may begin to enjoy the pleasures and comforts of home-owning before you become too old. If you start your example will be a stimulus to others and presently we will have a bigger building movement under way than would have been thought possible at this time.

AN INSULT TO THE INTELLIGENCE OF THE FARMERS

When, in a recent address, William Jennings Bryan asserted that "the reaction against the Republican party is founded upon the condition of our farmers," he very plainly intimated that they have short memories and small powers of reasoning.

If Grape Juice William will turn to the annual number of the New York Analyst, published by the New York Times, an independent Democratic paper noted for its reliable statistical information, he will find that the slump in the wholesale prices of food began early in 1920. That was within a few weeks after the Democratic Administration had adopted its new deflation program that was guaranteed to reduce the cost of living to a pre-war basis almost overnight.

At this time the index number, indicating the relative wholesale prices of food, stood at 115. In the middle of February, 1921, the average of wholesale prices was indicated by the index number 185, a drop of 111 points. By the end of 1921, there was a further drop of 25 points to 160.
These figures are from a Democratic source and were compiled for industrial, not political, purposes.

Moreover, the official record shows that Democratic policies adopted during the war, such as fixing the price of wheat, have done as very narrowly limit the profits of the farmer while the sky was the price limit in other lines of trade and industry. After having thus limited the profits of the farmer, and at the same time adopting policies which increased the rates of wages the farmer had to pay for his help and pieces he must pay for the commodities he must buy, the Democratic Administration adopted still other policies which made the farmer the first and most severe sufferer from the deflation plan. The tillers of the soil were therefore hit by both the inflation and deflation plan of the Democratic Administration, from the effect of which the Republican Administration has already provided substantial relief.

The report of the Federal Reserve Board for 1921, then under Democratic control, shows that in that year farmers were borrowing from the banks more heavily than ever before and were not only pledging their farms but also their Liberty Bonds as collateral. That was many months before the Republican Administration was elected or came into power, since which time it has given full recognition to the value and importance of agriculture as our first industry and has adopted measures to prevent wholesale bankruptcy of farmers who had mortgaged their all under the Democratic deflation program.

All of these things are matters of record and have been known to the farmers in all sections of the country at all stages of the proceedings. The assertion of Bryan that the farmers are blaming their condition on the party in power is as much beside the truth as it is an insult to the intelligence of the great army of the nation's providers.

Next to Ireland, America Is Closest to Irishmen's Hearts

Will Also Be Close in Economic, Intellectual and Spiritual Relationship When the Free State Is Functioning; Irish-Americans Will Help in the Re-Birth of the New Country.

By SHAW DESMOND

(Copyright, 1922, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

From the day the Irish Free State comes into being Irishmen will remember two things, and remember them as part of Ireland's settled policy. The first, that the Irish Free State will be free to enter into any relationship, excepting a military relationship, with any country she pleases; and secondly, that, after Ireland, America is the Irishman's "spiritual home." Boston is still nearer Ireland than London.

Ireland means to carry out her agreement with England. But, as many of us know, she has only agreed to that arrangement which meant surrendering independence. (1) to avoid the calamity of further fighting, and (2) because it makes her free to enter into economic, intellectual and spiritual relationship with the world in general, and with the United States in particular—the land where twenty millions of Irish descent and sympathy dwell as good Americans.

An Irish Minister to Washington.

Already we have seen an Irish consular service begun in New York.
Every effort, within constitutional limits, will be made to continue that or similar service. If there should prove to be technical objections to a "consular" service, then it may be called "The Irish Trade Information Bureau," or similar title. "A rose by any other name . . ." And it may be taken as fairly assured that Ireland, in her partial repudiation for surrendering her claim to independence at this juncture, will seek to send a minister to Washington, and, as part of the Commonwealth of Nations known as the "British Empire," may, to attain this ideal, set a bee buzzing in the brains of Australia, South Africa, etc., who may one day demand similar independent representation.

One point here. The Sinn Féiners have fully realized how difficult it will be for the British government to refuse these and similar proposals now that Ireland is a "Free State." While Ireland, in a sense, remained outside the Empire, it was a comparatively easy matter to jump on her when she "misbehaved" herself in any way. Now the process will not be so easy—it is too much like hitting a guest in your own house—perhaps an unwilling guest, but none the less a "guest."

The "Free State" wedge is one that may be driven home, and that in more than one direction, with surprising ease. And here it may be said that if Australia, for example, demanded such ministerial representation at Washington tomorrow I do not believe the imperial government would fight it for long. Sinn Féin knows that.

Similar "information" or consular bureaus, for trade purposes, etc., will probably be established in Chicago, Boston, San Francisco and the other great cities of the states.
We know already that the Irish government will have the right to determine its military conditions and to raise its own army, and will have the right, the Sinn Féiners are assuming, to frame the oath which will be administered to that army. The appointment of an Irish minister or the laying out of a consular service is but a little step farther.

Will America's Financiers Help?

As has been hinted at, Ireland will invite the best of American brains to help her in her rebirth. If any English bankers like to come along, they will of course be welcomed, but Ireland will not take any such as claim that what is one of the great American financial problems.

Two names occur to me as I write of it, type of Americans whom Ireland would welcome. One is that brilliant brain, Mr. Bernard M.
Baruch, who, as chairman of the War Industries Board, won the admiration of perspicacious Sinn Féiners. It is names like this which have been marked as being a potential force in the building up of a future Ireland.

What Ireland would ask from him, if America would lend him or her credit and transportation in connection with the Irish farmer. In other words, she is now Ireland and foremost an agricultural and not an industrial proposition, and so she wants to put her farming upon a modern business basis, a task for which Mr. Baruch would be supremely fitted as he has shown in connection with his work for the American farmer.

The other man who would be persona grata with Irishmen in connection with credit and finance, if he could be induced to help, although he has not been approached, as yet, is Frank Vanderlip, the American banker. His name has been noted by these Irishmen who have sympathy with a mind of "constructive daring" for it is just this policy of "constructive daring" which is going to be Ireland's policy in her rebirth.

Ireland wants machinery, agricultural and industrial. To get that machinery she will have to get credit, the thing which, in the past, has been her vital lack. A man like Vander-lip may one day be approached with a view to showing Ireland how to get this credit without putting herself under the heel of the financier, and generally to organize her finances, Vanderlip, if he will, can help her in these duties as perhaps no other man on the planet.

Harnessing America By Business.

And here one may let out a secret, cherished by idealist Irishmen who hate the ugliness and dwarfing influences of certain sides of modern industrialism. Just as Japan passed within a few years from feudalism to capitalism, so we believe that the new Ireland may discover a way of "jumping" the ugly transition period of industrialism and she believes she can do it by a new experiment in economic cooperation. It is just this type of experiment which has interested me so much in the Irish Free State, which one finds both in working-class circles and in Wall Street, because the American is perhaps the world's only financier who sometimes allows personal idealism to dominate economic advantages. It is the "big idea" which is typical of the American business man, and it will be Ireland's business, if possible, to harness this altruistic bigness to Ireland's needs.

There are three debts, among others, in which Ireland will probably seek American help within the next distant future.

Ireland is one of the most richly endowed mineral countries in Europe, but has lacked capital and the brain of the mining engineer to develop her natural resources, although she has made tentative efforts in both coal and copper-mining. Then her climate is specially suitable for the growth of certain kinds of fruit, but she has always lacked the technical knowledge necessary or such growth.
(The great elder apple orchards along the Blackwater, for example, by scientific treatment, could be turned into a steady source of wealth.) For this technique of fruit growing she will go to the Californians in all probability. Finally, she has enough water power running to waste to drive all the turbines, etc., necessary to light and heat the land.

Edison and Henry Ford.

What the new Ireland wants, and is going to ask for, is men like Edison and other great American scientists, to visit her for a period and teach her "the way to power." Power —water power, electrical power, etc., is what the new Ireland will be wanting more than anything else if she is ever to be anything more than a poorly cultivated, poorly lighted, poorly heated island. All this is known to Irishmen, who, first-fruits of their religion, will turn this mechanical side of the new Ireland over to the Catholic business brain in combination with the American scientific brain.

A point here. Nothing in the future will do more to ally (Irish reaction and suspicion of the south than steady cooperation with the Catholic brothers in business, etc., with a great country and market like that of America. England will of course also be used, but the vast country lying to the west, with its untold possibilities, waiting to be explored, will appeal to the Irish "Big Business" brain. Sinn Féin is counting on all this to make Cluster an effective working unit of the new Ireland. A country of north and south working together with Atlantic to build up a big business Ireland would prove an irresistible bond between Protestant and Catholic.

Transatlantic Service.

I am not going to prophesy that the former vast Black Sea Hay market for a transatlantic service will be frustrated within a few years, but, has examined the case and its possibilities upon a recent visit to the west of Ireland, and heard the expression of opinion of various Sinn Féiners, I have come to the conclusion that what is one of the great problems in the world will, so far as water time and sea-shines, may be the Irish terminus of a great Irish American line of steamships, both for freight and passengers. The difference in the way are great, but not insurmountable and when these and similar schemes are assumed to border upon the fantastic it must not be forgotten that the Irish imagination, now the source in leading airlines, may accomplish the apparently impossible.

Somebody has suggested that American brewing industry being so hard hit by the Volstead law, it might find an outlet for some of its tied-up capital in the Irish Free State. But the new Ireland is going to declare war on the publican and on the brewer, because the young Sinn Féin has almost always been a teetotaler and realizes how much harm alcohol has done to the highly-strung Irish brain in the past. The new Ireland will be "dry" before two generations.

One side of America is particularly exercising the imaginative interest of some of the young Irish educationalists. I refer to that splendid system of physical examination and regimentation in which America has specialized over so many years. Ireland, recognizing the hidden apology for education which has been her and knowing the value of a sound educational system, is, as I have gathered in conversation with John MacNoll, the Sinn Féin minister of education, and a born, eagerly waiting to absorb the best of American and other education.

What Ireland Doesn't Want.

There is just one thing the new Ireland will not want from America —and only one thing that in America's professions labor agitators of the Bolshevik type. Some of these gentlemen, having been in close contact with Irish labor leaders, like John Larkin (presently a man much beloved and respected in Ireland in the old days by Irish workmen) vainly imagine that now that Ireland is free, she will welcome the American brand of labor agitation. She will do nothing of the sort. The Irish workman is not either a the English or any other European workman for he is the Irishman, and, as the Irish workman, he is not a the English or any other European workman, and he is not a the English or any other European workman, and he is not a the English or any other European workman.

We are not going to change "God save Ireland!" to "Lionel and Ireland!" We are now free men and women.

Finally, the once militant alliance with the Clan na Gael and other Irish-American organizations will simply change its form and scope. From a combination directed against the British Empire, it will become a combination doing all in its power to hold together these organizations, will do so upon a constructive rather than a destructive basis. Never perhaps has Ireland needed money and help from her Irish-American friends so much as now, and this she believes, in full faith will not be refused her.

While the statesman may in the beginning view such rapprochement with unfavorable eyes, after a few years, when the excellent effect of Ireland and above all his sedate effect is noted, he will abandon that attitude. So far as the great British public is concerned, it never has known or cared much about Ireland, and the world British citizen will be much more thankful to have Ireland off his hands to bother as to whether she sends a minister or trades with Washington or Tinian-ton.

The Irish Free State's connection with America will prove a blessing to the British Empire and let the British state man sleep of nights!
And, indirectly, it will help a good understanding between Ireland and America, who, British have only been "enemies" by Ireland.

OPTICAL SERVICE

This means more than the mere supplying and fitting of glasses. Of greatest importance is the examination which determines the success or failure of an attempt to make your eyes more useful and comfortable. In order that your glasses fulfill all the requirements expected of them, the examination of your eyes must be accomplished by an experienced optical specialist. My increasing clientele is sufficient evidence of the ability with which examinations are made. You can buy now teeth—but you cannot buy new eyes. You can get along fairly well without hearing, smelling, tasting or feeling, but sight is more indispensable than these four senses combined. If you are suffering from any of the evils of eyestrain, have your eyes examined and fitted with glasses now. Since the recent readjustment of prices my services are practically at pre-war levels. I shall be glad to make an appointment at your convenience.

There are comparatively few who realize the importance of Quick and Efficient Service in relation to the Plumbing or Heating Business.

The Sporting World

Success of Proposed City League Depends on Support Given It by Local Fandom

Players Already at Top of Form, Having Played for Weeks.

GAME AT H. S. TONIGHT

The meeting of representatives of the eight proposed members of the new city league, proposed at a session at the Carnegie Free Library on Thursday night, tomorrow afternoon, will determine the fate of that proposition. The meeting is purely a local one and will give to sport followers of this city the best which is to be had in door games.

Its purpose is commendable. The league is being formed to give Connellsville people an opportunity to see the best athletes in the city in action on the floor at less cost. Another purpose is to keep Connellsville money in the city instead of allowing outside teams to come here and grab off big guarantees, local outfits going in the hole at the same time.

Interest in the proposition has increased by leaps and bounds since it was first proposed by a "sponsor." The public, on whom the success of the project will hinge, is sitting up and taking notice. The games will be played on two different nights on two different floors. For the price of one admission, reduced considerably, fans will see two games. By playing two games in an evening each of the eight teams in the league will play at least one game a week.

There is basketball blood in Connellsville and lots of it. If the enthusiasm of the fans is once aroused it will mean success for the game here. Otherwise the movement will be a failure. In Uniontown, only 12 miles away, the game is literally raging. Crowds equal to those which packed the Central League stadium several years ago are attending and the fever seems to be spreading.

Although the local movement is somewhat late it will not be necessary for the players to become set. All have been playing on the floor for weeks and are playing at top form.

C. H. S. Girls Are Victorious Again

The Connellsville High School girls defeated the Latrobe High team here yesterday afternoon. The score was 16-17. The Cokers came out with new uniforms and made a fine appeal. The local girls were better field shots and this decided the game.

Struble	1	Black	1
Jayman	1	King	1
Buttermore	1	Showatto	1
Tranks	1	Rhodes	1

High School Loses Game To Braddock

The Connellsville High School basketball team suffered what should be its last defeat in the W. P. I. A. League last night when the Braddock quintet outplayed it in its stride towards the state championship and triumphed over the Cokers by a score of 16-23. The score does not indicate the work Braddock had to do to get the nice margin.

Connellsville went there with every intention of making the leaders of Section 3 extend themselves to the utmost, and they did. The game was played at a fast clip and Connellsville was backed by a group of leaverters who accompanied them on the trip.

The line-up:

Braddock—16		Connellsville—23
Morris	1	Seayon	1
Read	1	McCormick	1
Zukovitch	1	Lowmyer	1
Sherman	1	Nixon	1
Cibula	1	Welsh	1

Substitutions—Balter for Cibula, O'Hara for Sherman, L. Reed for Zukovitch, Barrett for Read, Wibolske for Morris, Harrison for McCormick, Soisson for Harrison, Harmon for Nixon, Ozinsky for Welsh.

Field goals—Read 4, Zukovitch 1, Reed 3, Lowmyer 2, Nixon 2, Welsh 2, Cibula 2, Sherman, Balter, O'Hara.

Four goals—Morris, 10 out of 12; Soisson, 11 out of 14, McCormick 0 out of 3.

Referee—Wilson.

The Cokers have an exceptionally hard game on their hands tonight but one advantage will be in facing the team on the home floor. Altogether High School, leaders of the city section of the W. P. I. A. League, will be here for a little "season." Next to Braddock the Altogether combination is the strongest the Cokers have been called on to meet this year. The local games are giving the attention of fans who love fast, snappy and closely fought contests. The team has already won a number of times by close margins from aggregations of a higher class, and this alone has won the quietest scores of friends and admirers.

The little "fiddle" star of the sporting editor has been making life miserable for him all week because he overlooked the fact that the Freshmen have defeated the Senior quintet in a preliminary game at the high school last Saturday night. The score was 26-8. The chief grievance seemed to be based on the fact that the Freshmen would be lucky if they won another game this year and they wanted full credit for the victory over the upper class team.

Basketball fans will have an opportunity to show their appreciation of "Connellsville's Own" when the city league gets under way. If fans will not keep such a combination going then it will be very evident that Connellsville and Braddock do not go together.

The Cokers still had a good percentage for the entire season. The team has won 11 of 11 games played and lost six.

The game last night was the halfway mark of the season.

The "Y" Junior League starts on the second series of its season Monday afternoon.

POLE VAULT LIKENED TO PASTIME OF GOLF

Both Sports Require Powerful Wrist and Cool Nerve.

Bob Gardner Was First Man to Prove Conclusively That Two Games Fit in With One Another in Astonishing Manner.

Strange as it may seem at first glance, a great pole vault becomes an equally great golfer. He takes the latter game as seriously as he does the first named.

Both sports, although apparently vastly different, require a powerful wrist, a cool nerve and intense concentration.

Outside of the high jump, no stunt in track and field athletics requires so much concentration as the pole vault. It is not so much nerve as coolness.

The pole vault also calls for a strong flexible wrist, he reasons being obvious.

And so it is in golf. The two games fit in with one another in a most astonishing fashion. And the first man to prove this conclusively was Bob Gardner.

When a student at Yale Bob set a world's record in the pole vault. He didn't hold it long but he had the glory of being world champion for a few days at least.

And while wearing the blue he won the national amateur golf championship.

Clothing Truths.

By Wright-Melton Co.

Clothes are a very important adjunct to any man in either the social or the business world, yet, how many times a man is humbugged on the suit he wears. Very often a high price is paid for an apparently good suit of clothes, and it looks well until it has been worn in the rain once or twice, then it begins to shrink, the shoulders pull out of shape, and it looks just like what it is—a suit from an unreliable manufacturer.

The public is becoming more and more educated every day, and the clothes who tell you a suit is an A number 1, all wool garment, when he knows it isn't, will eventually be obliged to change his business methods or close up shop.

On the other hand a clothes is just as dishonest who charges you an exorbitant price. It is not always the expensive clothes that are the best and if you wish to know just what you are getting and to save you are paying the correct price, it will pay you to go to a reliable clothes dealer. Know a man by his clothes!

MAKES YANKEES LOOK CHEAP

Pitcher Remond of Athletics Is Big Stumbling Block for New York Americans.

"Can't understand it," said Bobby Roth of the Yankees recently, "how this man Remond of the Athletics can make the Yankees and Indians look like 10 cents and have his troubles finishing a game against the other five clubs in the league. He makes us look as if we never saw a curve ball before."

Then there is this man Erickson. He is peaches and cream for us and the Athletics, but Cleveland keeps him in the league.

Speaking about Philadelphia pitcher, I think Connie Mack has the best pitching staff in the league," says Frank Roth, Bob's older brother who is battery coach for the Yankees.

Remond is good. So is Harris Moore. As much stuff as any left-hander in the league. Keefe has a lot of stuff, and then there are Perry and Taylor.

SPARE GLOVE FOR BUM HAND

Catcher Clemens of Cardinals, Makes Use of Extra Mitt While Game Is Being Played.

Catcher Vernon Clemens of the St. Louis Cardinals is the only catcher as far as known who makes use of a spare glove while game is on. Fans have noticed that Clemens carries two gloves to the plate, dons one for a few pitches, then takes it off and puts on the other glove. The reason is simple. Clemens has had a sore hand to protect it he wears a thick padded glove at the start of an inning, but as runners get on he changes to a thinner and lighter mitt, with which there is less danger of dropping the ball.

The Connellsville Construction Company, which does a large contracting and retailing business in this city and within a radius of 50 miles in all directions from Connellsville has just completed its 19th year in the building trade. In this time the company has erected hundreds of buildings, among them being some of the most handsome residences and largest business blocks in Connellsville.

During the war the company carried its contracts through to a successful conclusion. It was in this pressing period that the concern erected a whole coke town for the Washington Coal & Coke Company at Star Junction. Fifty double houses, of 8, 10 and 12 rooms each, considered the finest company houses in the Western Pennsylvania coal and coke district, were built. It was in the same period that the plant of the Fayette Baking Company, one of the most modern structures of the kind doing business today, was erected.

"We have the goods and are proud of our deliveries," is the slogan of the construction company. It is a complete Connellsville industry, organized by citizens of this city and carried through to the present time, for the most part, by the original owners.

The present officers are C. M. Hyatt, president; L. E. Treher, secretary; and A. M. Haines, manager and treasurer. Directors are E. T. Norton, C. M. Hyatt, Dr. W. J. Bailey, Charles Weihe, J. Donald Porter, and A. M. Haines.

The company was incorporated in February, 1903 with an authorized capital of $50,000. Its offices and yards are still located at the original sites. At that time F. T. Evans, deceased, was president; C. M. Hyatt, vice president; J. Fred Kurtz, secretary-treasurer; and A. M. Haines, manager. The board of directors was composed of F. T. Evans, C. M. Hyatt, J. A. Guiler, E. T. Norton, John Curry, A. M. Haines and E. C. Higbee.

SELLERS

Since the beginning of man, home has been a haven from strife and worry and the one place where the cares of business and labor may be forgotten.

No part of the home expresses individuality as does the clean, sanitary kitchen and the modern Bath.

The expense of a really fine place of work is not to be compared with the satisfaction and joy of possession.
